

The Graham Group

A LEGACY OF RELATIONSHIP INVESTING

About Us

Evolving From an Operational Legacy to Private Capital Investment Management

Launched from a modest start in a farmhouse basement, the Graham Group today has evolved into seven independent investment firms with dozens of operating businesses.

Our investment firms share in the common legacy of entrepreneur Don Graham, an engineer who built and ran several global manufacturing businesses.

About Us

The third-party capital we manage is principally institutional capital of leading university endowments, charitable foundations, public pension funds, and other financial institutions.

As we have grown, we have evolved from the manufacturing platform Don Graham built in packaging, building materials, and machinery into an investment management group with extensive operational expertise to offer to our portfolio companies.

History

The origins of the Graham Group date back to 1960, when Don Graham founded a design engineering firm. Today, the advanced manufacturing and industrial technology businesses which spawned from Don's engineering firm boast over 90 locations around the world and generate several billion dollars in revenue annually.

That entrepreneurial tradition has continued as Graham has expanded into the investment management business with multiple independent Graham businesses now managing third party institutional capital alongside of internal funds, deploying a variety of private capital strategies.

Legacy Operating Businesses

Graham Engineering has spawned numerous businesses in industrial technology and advanced manufacturing, but its primary activity today is the manufacturing of high-speed plastics and composites processing machinery and related technology, sold globally under the Graham Engineering brand.
